Subject: Update to Rockwell Automation Pricing

We are writing to provide an update on a forthcoming adjustment to Rockwell Automation list pricing.

As you may be aware, 2026 has seen several pricing adjustments driven by ongoing global market volatility, including supply chain pressures and cost fluctuations. In May 2026, NHP advised that Rockwell Automation would implement targeted price increases across selected product lines, effective June.

Following further review and continued mitigation initiatives, Rockwell Automation has now confirmed a broader list price adjustment as part of a price correction initiative aimed at delivering a more balanced, consistent, and market-aligned pricing structure. The program spans a range of product lines and includes both price reductions and a smaller number of price increases, with the changes overall delivering a weighted price decrease of 0.20% across all affected products.

The updated list pricing will take effect from 1 August 2026. Revised price files will be made available ahead of the effective date to support a smooth transition.

Should you require further details on the program or its application to specific product lines, please contact your NHP representative.

Thank you for your continued partnership with NHP.

Yours Sincerely,

Michael Liberatore
Chief Sales Officer
